Asem Abdelfattah graduated with a masters degree in Economics from Troy University where he was sponsored by the Manuel Johnson Center for Political Economy and served as a graduate research and teaching assistant. Throughout his academic training, Asem developed research interests in Islamic Finance, Higher Education, Philanthropy, Collective Action, and Political Economy. Asem hopes to bring original ideas and research from those fields to build Islamic Institutions that are beneficial and sustainable for the American Muslim community and for the Islamic Ummah at large.

About NACIF

Quick Links

About

Main Office

and practitioners to discuss and collaborate on the various innovative practices that are being used in the Islamic finance industry. Ultimately, the goal of NACIF is to facilitate sustainable finance practices that benefit society at all levels.

Email - nacif@guidancecollege.org